

Lecture Three: Private Law

Academic Year: 2023-2024

Lawyers and law students who try to deny the necessity of finding out more about legal tech are many in number and, sadly, are probably going to become less employable. Legal English will inevitably have to adapt as the technology that assists lawyers to do their jobs more efficiently develops and grows in importance. It is therefore no longer possible to learn legal English effectively without keeping a close watch on developments in legal tech. As this is a digital revolution, it seems fitting that online is the best place to do your research and all you need to do to catch up on this subject is to give it some time and effort. It is a very easily accessible subject. Let's begin the conversation.

CITED IN <https://cambridgelawstudio.co.uk/wp-content/uploads/2023/04/Unit-1-5-ALE.pdf>

Collecting keywords:

Legal tech

Digital revolution

Phrasal verbs

run up - cut back on - get out of - sum up - take over - hand over - face up to - step down - walk out of - write of

Sentences to consider

1. The company's CEO resigned after the press reported on illegal employment practices.
2. She abandoned her job when her employer accused her of lying about her qualifications.
3. Several companies have expressed interest in acquiring my client's business.
4. The expelled partner had accumulated a debt of £8,000 on the company credit card.
5. If you accept the fact that you have breached employment law, we can avoid court and reach a reasonable settlement with the claimant.